Stance on Abortion/Contraception

As of 2022, Doctors Without Borders provide “safe abortion care” for women in Benin.

DWB makes the claim that around 70% of maternal deaths occur in Sub-Sahara Africa and that most of the “abortion-related deaths are the result of unsafe induced abortions, which could be largely avoided by providing comprehensive abortion care, including post-abortion care, contraception, and safe abortion services, so that no one feels they have to resort to dangerous procedures or delay care until it’s too late.”

They proceed to describe what they term as an “unsafe abortion”:

An unsafe induced abortion is one carried out by someone who does not have the necessary skills to perform it, or does not comply with medical standards. Often, unsafe abortions result in severe abortion-related complications, defined by WHO as potentially life-threatening cases that result in death or near-misses, based on a set of standardized clinical, biological, and treatment criteria used in a multi-country survey on abortion (MCS-A).

They also describe what they term as “safe abortion”:

An abortion is considered safe if the person providing or supporting the abortion is trained and uses an evidence-based method that is appropriate to the pregnancy duration. Medication abortion, or an abortion with pills, is an example of a safe, evidence-based method of abortion

There are also personal testimonies throughout this webpage that document women “suffering” from lack of abortion and contraception access due to laws or familial beliefs/religion.

Dr. Carrie Teicher, DWB’s director of programs, made a statement in April 2023 applauding the US Supreme Court’s approval of the Biden administration’s request to continue the selling and distribution of the abortion pill, Mifepristone.

DWB applauded Honduras in March 2023 for ending their 14-year ban on emergency contraception.

This write-up not only promotes contraception, abortion, and promiscuity among women, but it also talks about helping “transgender” women, who are in fact men, with their sexual education and health.

There are too many posts promoting abortion on DWB's website, including these three: the top written by a midwife who supports and assists with abortions, and the second from 15 women from across the globe who sadly retell their own abortion stories with pride in their decisions.

This is an animated depiction of taking the abortion pill regimen of Mifepristone and Misoprostol. In this video, however, DWB is promoting the abortion pill regimen and trying to simplify the side effects and the process.

There are numerous postings on their Facebook page that echo the lies that "abortion is healthcare" and other pro-abortion mantras.

Stance on LGBTQ+

Doctors Without Borders also promotes and advocates for the LGBTQ+ lifestyle. A snippet from their campaign to stand with LGBTQ+ states:

In Mexico, we see many LGBTQI+ people among the refugees and migrants fleeing Central America. We also work with community leaders on health promotion efforts. In Mozambique, we have run a project to promote HIV testing and treatment with peer educators reaching out to transgender women and men who have sex with men, among other vulnerable groups.

This promotional story from DWB is about a man who identifies as a "transgender woman" and how DWB helped him seek "asylum."

This slide appears to be a training for DWB workers on how to work with LGBTQ+ projects.
