Stance on Abortion and Contraception

The Trevor Project's CEO released the following statement on behalf of the organization, condemning the decision of Dobbs v. Jackson in June 2022:

The Supreme Court's decision in Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization is causing many people to experience a wide range of concerns for bodily autonomy, LGBTQ rights, and public health, including mental health. The Trevor Project's polling has found that nearly 70% of LGBTQ young people say efforts to restrict access to abortion often gave them stress or anxiety. Overturning Roe v. Wade will allow states to further restrict and regulate essential health care and reduce access to the already limited number of LGBTQ-competent providers in many parts of the country, posing a threat to the health and safety of young LGBTQ people. In undermining decades of jurisprudence on the constitutional right to privacy, this decision could also jeopardize the rights afforded to LGBTQ people in the landmark Obergefell and Lawrence decisions — to love who you love and be who you are without fear of criminalization. The Trevor Project will not stop fighting to establish true, lived equality for LGBTQ people, and our counselors are here 24/7 to support all young LGBTQ people across the country who may be feeling a wide range of emotions — including fear, stress, and anxiety — in response to this decision.

The Trevor Project released a blog post in January 2023 that polled the social and political policies that negatively impact the LGBTQ+ youth. According to the poll by The Trevor Project, 52% of LGBTQ+ youth find “efforts to restrict access to abortion” to give them “stress and anxiety.”

This 2018 article by TTP claims that the creation of the Conscience and Religious Freedom Division in the Office of Human Rights is formed to “discriminate.”

Those claiming a religious objection to providing services like mental health support to a young transgender person or an abortion to bisexual youth now have an office with the sole purpose of defending such harmful, discriminatory actions toward LGBTQ youth.

TTP lists “sexual health support” resources on their website, which include Planned Parenthood, Trans Youth Sexual Health Booklet, and the National Abortion Federation Hotline.

In this article about HIV and AIDS, TTP advocates for the use of condoms and dental dams.

Stance on LGBTQ+ Lifestyle

This guide above was posted on their website to advocate for one to be an “ally” to transgender and nonbinary youth by “refraining from making assumptions about people’s gender,” “can’t assume people’s gender identities or names,” and not “misgendering.”

The Trevor Project uses social media to advocate for transgenderism. This video shows their support for a little boy who underwent surgery to live as a girl.

Note: The Trevor Project promotes the LGBTQ+ lifestyle throughout the organization’s website articles/resources, advocacy, and social media. They heavily support transgenderism as well and promote stories of children and young adults who say they are transgender. They also advocate for the removal of conversion therapy, advocate against parental rights to know the sexually explicit material being taught and read to their children in schools and libraries, and advocate against required notification to parents if their child wants to identify by a different name or gender in school.
